How a day works. A placement check finds each child's level in each subject, and it can start below or above their enrolled grade. Each grade is a course of ordered units and lessons. Every skill opens with a short guided lesson, then practice. A natural voice reads everything aloud.

When a child is wrong. Gallop says why that specific answer is wrong and gives a second try. When a skill stays stuck, a Skill Drill re-teaches it. Today's Plan sets each child's session, and struggling readers can follow a Reading Path, a decoding ladder taken one step a day.

For the parent. A weekly progress report, a dashboard with tutor's notes and a five-minute tip to do at home, and certificates when a grade is cleared. No ads, data never sold, and no open chat: children answer structured questions only.
